

How do I handle my unaccepting Mormon family?

Contributed by Deana

Friday, 13 June 2008

Last Updated Tuesday, 17 June 2008

My in laws just cannot accept, and are very hurtful due to the fact I am not Mormon. I don't want to convert, plus my husband is inactive, and has been for years before we even met. I just want everyone to get along. I can appreciate the mormon lifestyle and respect them and their beliefs. Why can't they return the favor? My husband and I both lead simple clean lifestyles.

What is the best way to deal with basically Aunts, Uncles and Grandma who tears into us whenever we are having get togethers, mostly when my husband isn't in the room to defend me?